RAPID TRANSIT.

ITS MORAL AND SANITARY EFFECTS

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD: In your issue of the 16th inst, appears an important and appropriate introduction of a new phase of the now popular theme of rapid transit—to wit, its sanitary and moral aspect. As a participant in the hearings before the Aidermanic Committee on kapid Transit, I accept your implied censure for overlooking this important branch of the sublect. I am glad your influential columns have rescuedat, and if accorded space I would make amends by emphasizing and amplifying it, and addng a collateral branch of the same subject, not embraced in your article-to wit, the injury to passengers and employes of street roads, in health and morals. As the health and morals of our cuizens are intimately related to taxes and real estate values a fuiler presentation of this subject should interest taxpayers and property ownamong the wisest economies, and the economic interest of the city is but the aggregation of the economic interests of all its citizens. That it would be an immense sanitary improvement for passengers to exchange the slow-going, dusty, noisy. oathsome, verminous, chilling, ill-lighted, ill-ven tuated, crowded and latiguing street cars, with their straps and mantraps in the shape of platorms, with their continuous crops of colds, rhenmatisms, pneumonias, consumptions and conlagions, for the elegant, spacious, comfortable, warm and wholesome coaches of a well-appointed rapid transit railway neces only to be stated. This contrast is already furnished in the luxurious cars of the Greenwich Elevated Railway, and the puole attests its appreciation by a large and growing paronage. That it would be a decided moral improvement overy one who, has a sister, when or daugnter habe to the contaminating influences and imminities of a street car, or who is not proof against robbery and drunken ruffichism, is ready to acknowledge. Indeed, it is diment to exaggerate the positive suffering mat how, much of the time, accompanies our present modes of transit; while rapid transit will allore to the tried mechanic, the pear-up cierk and merchant an agreeable diversion. Investigation would show that many of the cases of the now prevalent pneumonias are directly due to the transition from warm counting trooms, offices and manufactories to the chilling street car. agions, for the elegant, spacious, comfortable, rectly due to the transition from warm counting rooms, offices and manufactories to the chilling street car.

Rapid transit will, unquestionably, multiply manifold the number of clean, airy, spacious and cheerial homes, embowered aimid flowers and gardens, by peopling the unicenantied wastes of apper New York, the new wards and lower Westchester with the pentup poonsation of our tensement bouses, and will render them duly accessible in less time and far more easily and comfortably man how requisite to reach most portions of the lity. A decided portion of our taxes are levied for the support of invalids, paupers and criminals. Rapid transit, by removing our youth from the temptations of the crowded centres, by intrinsing the laboring classes with the opportunity and incentives for suburban homes; by excanging the deadly, pestience laden air of tenement houses for the wholesome, vitalizing element of the suburbs; will very sensibly diminish sickness, pauperism, crime and taxes. It will mustiply homes in fleu of tenenets; owners in heu of tenenets; owners in heu of tenenets; owners in heu of tenenets. A manly independence will succeed servility; the sanctity and privacy of home, the femotalizing comminging of different manifes. Rapid transit will save an hour daily to the great majority of business men for business, diversion, physical and mental improvement and domestic concerns, all conductive to nealth and longevity. With present modes of transit in the morning a business man must both bis breaknast, and so havite indigestion; then suffer an hours martygoom, bulanding himself with straps, and when dumped near his place of business is too fatigued to enter with proper spirit or seriently upon the duties of the day. In the evening the larger areas will the air in the denser districts be purfied, crowded tenements reneved, the general and the death rate duminished. Withside are in the street and seal. Viriated are is the most efficient factor and disseminator of epidemics, disease and death, kecent and rizzal investigations in London, by an eminent physician and scientist, have demonstrated that, in the more populous districts, the freatment of wounds and injuries has perceptibly grown more difficult, tedious and unsuccessful, and epidemics and contagions stay longer, spread further and are more difficult to eradicate than formerly. In a summary way I must say that rapid trabsit, in its sanitary and moral aspects arone, will directly lessen city taxes by removing one of its retrini causes, in inting large chases of dependent citizens into a higher plane of thritt and independence, and transforming many tax consuming into tax paying citizens; and thindependently of the reduced rate of taxation, due to enhanced values of all taxable real estate. Reciprocally the same cause will economize the Reciprocally the same cause will economize the time of all our citizens, and, insuring to them greater health, safety and serenity, increase their longevity and efficiency, and so far enhance their ability to pay their taxes.

ELEVATED BAILWAY AND SIDEWALE. TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD :-

Some months since, in a communication pub-lisues in the HERALD and signed "Engineer," I suggested the leasibility of constructing an elevated railway along ooth sides of Broadway, about on a level with the second floors of buildings, the intervening space between the buildings and the track to be closed by an elevated translucent sidewalk which would form an arcade of the walk below. I also suggested that these elevated sidebe,ow. I also sugrested that these elevated sidewalks should be continued over the cross streets and protected from the railway track and at the street crossings by suitable railing, and that the second stories should in this way be made available for the retail trade. My attention has been recalled to this subject by the very sensible letter of Mr. W. W. Evans, wherein he recommends "a single track elevated over each sidewalk," and "the whole of the space over the sidewalks to be routed over with transverse beams of iron, glass plates next to the buildings, and the balance of the paving to be blocks of artificial stone." By this, I take It, he means to have the space between the rails puved with blocks of artificial stone which would increase the weight to be borne by the supporting columns and afford a lodgment for show and ice in winter, thus adding to the expense of running the road and increasing the liability to accidents, Mr. Evans, while providing an elevated side-in winter, thus adding to the expense of running the road and increasing the liab.lity to accidents.

Mr. Evans, while providing an elevated sidewalk in front of the buildings, lails to apply it to any practical use except protecting the walk below. It would add but very little to the cost of the structure which he recommends to make it a continuous elevated sidewalk protected by suitable railings and affording direct communication with the second floors, making them quite as valuable, especially for the retail trade, as the first floors. Such a road would increase the value of the property along which it passed and it built along one of the wile avonues, where wide sidewalks could be obtained, it would make that avenue the best location for the retail trade in the city. A laoy could then leave her home in the upper part of the city, ridedown town in comfortable cars in about one-fourth of the time now required, walk two or three blocks along a perfectly clean, level sidewalk, do her shopping, return to a comfortable depot and in a few minutes be taken by the same comfortable conveyance to zer home. No fifthy street crossings, no draggled skirts, no rained dresses, no spoiled tempers, no danger from passing vehicles, no standing upon street corners in stormy weather waiting lor stage or street car, no wading through mud and sush, no hanging on to car straps or standing on platforms, no being dumped into the middled a dirty, crowded street to gain the nearest slowwisk at the risk of your life, no frozen toes, bad colds or pueumonia from riding in cold street cars, and let us hope, no vermin.

LEGISLATORS AND RAPID TRANSIT.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD:-In regard to rapid transit, which your great paper is helping the people to accomplish, I would offer a suggestion. If you could point out those drivers on the horse cars you would indicate who are the legislators opposed to rapid transit and whose hands are tied by bribes from ralicosd companies.

ONE OF THE TRIBUNES.

SHOOTING AFFRAY.

Two colored meu, named James Cooper and William Enuels, or No. 167 Thompson street, got William Ennels, of No. 167 Thompson street, got into a dispute yesterday in the street. Cooper drew a revolver and fired two shots at Ennels. One ball lodged in Ennels' breast and the other in the abdomen. A third shot fired by Cooper struck a girl named Pauline Schmidt, aged six years, of No. 33 Bariew street, who happened to be passing by at the time. The wounded girl was taken to her home, and Ennels was removed to Believue Hospital. Cooper escaped from the police.

GOVERNMENT AND OTHER BONDS.

WALL STREET, SUNDAY, Feb. 21, 1875. Many of the events of the past week were interesting and significant, inasmuch as they indicated probable changes in the not distant future, to say nothing of those aiready recorded. The discussions in Congress upon the subject of the tariff, the effort made to restore the subsidy recently withdrawn from the Pacific Mail Steamship Company, the pending question concerning relegraphic rates both in and out of the national legislature, the propositions of the Union Pacific and Central Pacific railroads to commence the payment of their obligations to the general government and the favorable consideration of the same by the Cabinet are elements of a situation that are calculated to modify existing conditions, and, according to the success or defe-t of the measures, may enable the speculator to give new snape to

THE SYMPTOMS ARE ALREAD A APPARENT that a combination of these and other influence. has had its effect, and that for the moment the attempt to sistematically depress prices has ceased. Surveying the entire field of operations, whatever of weakness may have been engendered by the reduced earnings of railroads and by commercial dulness appears from a speculative point waether real or artifical we are not prepared to say-that will be felt sympathetically upon the marker. It is not to be supposed by the ardent and impatient speculator, however, that prices will not decline whenever their advance makes a bear movement profitable, or that sundry pauses will not occur in any well regulated buil process. GOLD 115% A 114%.

The gold market was a place of much interest in the early part of the week, when it was believed that the clique engaged in manipulating its value would "show their hand" by making a "squeeze" in cash gold. The apprehension was not realized, however, although it is possible, in view of the small supply on hand, that such an effort may be made hereafter. The price advanced from 114% to 115% as a consequence of the fears alluded to, but subsequently declined to and closed at 114%. At one time 1-16 per diem was exacted for the use of cash gold; but later the market was supplied by the buils, and holders paid from 1 to 3 per cent to have palances carried.

The most demoralizing effect of the gold movement was felt in the foreign exchange market, which underwent fluctuations of an unusual character and experienced a greater cepres-sion than has been exhibited since the panic. On Monday the market was reasonably firm, on Tuesday lower, and on Wednesday reached the lowest rates, to wit-4.80 for long and 4.83 for short bankers' sterling, actual business being done at 4.79 and 4.82. From this point recovery commenced on the strength of more lavorable advices from abroad, and at the close the quotations were 4.83 and 4.86% as the nominal bankers' rates.

THE MONEY MARKET has been unchanged, call loans being made all the week on the basis of 2 and 3 per cent. Commorcial paper is in comparatively good demand at 4 and 6 per cent for prime. The transactions under 5 per cent, however, were limited. It is now definitely settled that the Washington authorities insist that, under the new law, the withdrawal of 80 per cent of greenoacks must begin immediately, against all new issues of national bank circula-

The commercial week closing with Saturday was one of unusual irregularity and fluctuations. The spring trade in some of the leading commodities showed considerable increase, as compared with the previous week, and in some cases business was tolerably active. In dry goods an increasing business was in progress, and the market assumed an appearance of considerable activity and buoyancy, a lair trade in all the leading popular lab rics coing consummated. The bardware business was decidedly active and buoyant. A large busitained that February will score up unusually large transactions. In most other departments a lair business was done, although the markets were irregular and prices fluctuating materially from day to day. On 'Change Lour assumed a firmer tone, under a better demand for shirt ng extras, and at the close of the week better prices were generally de-manded. Wheat was in limited demand nearly all the week, and with untavorable cable advices from Europe little was wanted and little sold. On Friday and Saturday, however, the market assumed a much firmer tone and better prices were obtained, the market closing firm on Saturday at the extreme prices paid, while bu little was to be obtained save at a further advance. The corn market was also firmer toward the close of the week, and prices favored the seller to the extent of 2c, a 3c, per bushel, closing firm. Oats were firm, though without decided change in prices. Whiskey was irregular, alclose being easy. Provisions were easy all through the week, pork being nominal. Bacon was firm on Satur-day.
